Outreach & Education - While we work with the research community to identify a pipeline of future treatments for the congenital muscular dystrophies, Cure CMD supports the affected community where they are today, through a variety of supportive content and connections that are responsive to their needs and giving them a prominent voice in determining Cure CMD's priorities and future programming. We host the CMD Scientific and Family Conference (SciFam: scifam.info), bringing together stakeholders from around the world to learn, share, and interrogate research progress. We host an ongoing webinar series that explores topics relevant to those living with or caring for someone with CMD. We host online support groups and other opportunities for community members to connect and share their experiences. Our Legislative Advocacy Team forges a path for community members to share their story and their needs with local, state, and federal policy makers. And our Executive and Scientific Directors provide 1:1 support for those newly diagnosed and struggling to understand where they should begin to ensure their affected loved one has the best possible quality of life. Patient Registry - Cure CMD is the administrator of the Congenital Muscle Disease International Registry (CMDIR), the largest database of congenital muscle disease (CMD) affected individuals. Our goal is to achieve global registration of the CMD community and serve as the central hub for up to date information regarding clinical studies and trials, expert diagnostics and care, and resources to educate affected individuals, families and caregivers. Through the CMDIR, the CMD community has a home, a place to register - with or without genetic confirmation - and a means by which to be notified about news, resources, and opportunities to participate in clinical trials. The data collected and information provided has been developed with the review, direction and advice of research and clinical experts, affected individuals and caregivers, and industry and government representatives, in an effort to create a meaningful tool designed to drive the community toward treatments. The team behind the CMDIR continues to refine and perfect this tool in constant evolution to best serve the needs of the CMD stakeholder community.

Research Strategy - Scientific research provides the foundation for understanding the causes and course of disease, and provides the opportunity to develop the tools necessary for establishing treatments that will slow, stop, or even reverse CMD symptom progression. Everyone living with a congenital muscular dystrophy has unmet needs, and addressing those needs is at the core of Cure CMDs mission. We identify scientists and clinicians from around the world with a wide variety of expertise to remove treatment roadblocks, building a rich and adaptable research environment that capitalizes on new technologies as they arise. We shepherd CMD research growth and breakthroughs and monitor advances in other neuromuscular conditions that could impact our own progress, continually refining priorities that are responsive to the needs of our affected community. We participate in, and often host scientific meetings that share and interrogate research progress while communicating the needs of our affected community to researchers so that their priorities are aligned. We encourage the interest and eagerness of young scientists, encouraging them to continue careers focused on CMD research after completing their fellowships. Our Scientific Director stays abreast of the latest research publications, to better understand and incorporate scientific progress and breakthroughs into our research plan, and identify synergies between labs working in similar areas. Perhaps most importantly, we maintain a continuous dialogue with the CMD community and expert clinicians, to understand the evolving needs and priorities of affected individuals, ensuring that we continue to fund the most promising research and clinical developments through our patient-centered vision.
